

Vogue UK: 'Frieze Art Fair Guide' October 7, 2016.

Frieze London Art Fair is upon us for another year and with so much to see over the next few days, it's easy to be overwhelmed. Luckily, we've picked out the must-sees for you. And while you might not be looking to buy a new work for your walls, it doesn't cost to look.

Jeff Koons at Almine Rech

This week saw the opening of French art dealer Almine Rech's latest London outpost (a New York space, her fifth, follows later this year), which she marked with an exhibition of Jeff Koons' work. The show features paintings from the American artist's Gazing Ball series as well his gleaming metal ballerina sculptures, but if your appetite for Koons' work still isn't sated after a visit to Rech's intimate space, then you can head over to the Newport Street Gallery where his show Now is on until October 16.
