

Considering Art Podcast – Marcus Jansen, American expressionist painter

By Bob Chaundy, January 17, 2022

Chaotic World, 2021, Oil enamel, spray paint, oil stick, toys, wood, foam and paintbrushes on canvas.
© Photo by Melissa Castro Duarte / Courtesy of Almine Rech

In this episode, Marcus Jansen talks about his unusual upbringing in both New York and Mönchengladbach, the influence of street artists and German Expressionists on his work, how he joined the US Army in 1989 and took part in the first Gulf War, how art saved him when he developed PTSD and how the war changed his both his political viewpoint as well as his art.

▶ 0:01 / 34:19

Marcus Jansen talking with Bob Chaundy