

NewsOK : 'New York City artist Joe Andoe to give a lecture Tuesday at University of Oklahoma, By Brandy McDonnell April 10th, 2017

Joe Andoe. Photo provided

NORMAN – University of Oklahoma alumnus, Tulsa native and New York City artist Joe Andoe will present a public lecture Tuesday about his OU experiences, his move to the Big Apple and his overall body of work.

The talk, presented by the OU School of Visual Arts is scheduled for 5 p.m. in room 21 on the second floor of the Fred Jones Center, 520 Parrington Oval, on the OU Norman campus.

Members of the public are invited to attend the reception, which will be in the building lobby area immediately following the lecture. There will be refreshments and live music from DT5. Both the lecture and reception are complimentary, according to a news release.

During his visit, Andoe also will be visiting with undergraduate and graduate students at the School of Visual Arts. In addition, he is serving as the guest juror for the 103rd student exhibition at the Fred Jones Jr. Museum of Art. Andoe is curating the exhibition, and he will be selecting the works that will receive awards given out at the opening reception on Thursday, April 20.

Andoe graduated from OU in 1981 with a master of fine arts degree in art. Originally from Tulsa, he moved to New York City after earning his OU degree. He has been living and working in New York since 1982.

Andoe's works have been exhibited in museums across the nation, most notably the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art and the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York City, the Museum of Modern Art in Boston, and the Museum of Contemporary Art in San Diego.

For more information on the OU School of Visual Arts, go to art.ou.edu.

-BAM