Tabish Khan the @LondonArtCritic picks his favourite exhibitions to see this month – this time they're all located close to each other within Mayfair or Fitzrovia . Each one comes with a concise review to help you decide whether it's for you. Those looking for more shows should check out last week's top 5 where all remain open.

Reflecting both his time in the armed forces and hot topics in contemporary society Marcus Jansen's 'faceless' paintings are powerful portraits. Referencing how we only celebrate victors, the silencing of women, tearing down of monuments and the continued invasion of personal privacy in this punchy political painting show.
