Tabish Khan the @LondonArtCritic picks his favourite exhibitions to see this month – this time they're all shows by female artists to coincide with International Women's Day on 8 March. Each one comes with a concise review to help you decide whether it's for you. Those looking for more shows should check out last week's top 5 where all but one remain open.

Items of technology lose their function and are transformed into artworks through performances where some are wrapped in copper wire to form objects akin to totems and other objects like a drone and a calculator are covered in paint and used to create paintings. Traditionally female practices are used to subvert technology which is often male dominated. Until 2 April.
